

UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK IN PRAGUE

New Campus

Master's in Psychology

Educating
Tomorrow's
Leaders

About the Program

The master's degree in Psychology at the University of New York in Prague provides a strong theoretical and practical foundation in psychology and related subfields such as clinical psychology, health psychology, educational psychology and organizational psychology. Graduates of the program will have obtained specific knowledge and professional competencies to work as independent psychologists and to pursue further education as well as qualifications in different fields of psychology, including research and academia.

This study program complies with international requirements for the European Master's diploma in Psychology and is accredited by the Czech Ministry of Education, Youth and Sport (MŠMT) leading to the title Mgr., which is the equivalent of an M.A. degree.

Program Structure

This two-year program of 124 ECTS credits leads to a European Master's diploma in Psychology and is accredited by the Czech Ministry of Education, Youth and Sport (MŠMT). Courses run primarily on the weekends in order to support students' internship and potential work needs during the week.

There are specialized theoretical and practical tracks, which provide the foundation for related applied and clinical disciplines. Each will influence the student's internship placement as well as elective choices:

- 1) Clinical and Health Psychology
- 2) School and Educational Psychology
- 3) Personnel and Organizational Psychology

Top Reasons to Study the Master's in Psychology

- A master's degree in psychology is an essential foundation for professions in all fields of psychology, from clinical work to academic research.
- Students in the Master's program in Psychology at UNYP will be thoroughly prepared at both theoretical and practical levels.
- Master's studies in psychology at UNYP offer supervised internships, which provide graduates with practical experience for acquiring crucial knowledge and skills unavailable in books alone.
- Mentors provide valuable support for independent research and guidance throughout the design and implementation of an original scientific project and thesis.
- UNYP's Master of Psychology by its nature helps students to build lifelong networks building meaningful scientific, professional and collegial bonds.

Sample Courses Offered in the Program

Courses include:

- Clinical and health psychology
- Social psychology
- Psychology of personality
- Cognitive psychology
- Psychology of work and organization
- Developmental psychology
- Educational psychology
- Clinical psychology and psychological assessment
- Research methods in psychology
- Advanced statistical analysis
- Addictology counseling
- Educational and therapeutic applications of music psychology
- Forensic psychology and psychiatry

Faculty

The Master's in Psychology faculty comprises leading experts within numerous fields of psychology from prestigious universities like Cambridge, Harvard, Columbia University, and Charles University to name a few. The international, diverse instructors integrate theoretical knowledge with practical experience to make the student-centered learning process particularly beneficial and stimulating. Instructors will address both theory and method throughout this highly interactive program in order for students to gain the most out of their graduate educational experience at UNYP.

MINISTERSTVO ŠKOLSTVÍ,
MLÁDEŽE A TĚLOVÝCHOVY

UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
IN PRAGUE

Admissions Office: Londýnská 41, Prague 2, 120 00, Czech Republic
Telephone: +420 224 221 261, +420 224 221 281 / E-mail: admissions@unyp.cz / www.unyp.cz

